

TESTIMONIALS

“As an infrastructure finance firm looking to invest in the biomass-based diesel market, we asked Rock House Advisors to spearhead several key elements of due diligence on a particular project. The first phase of that due diligence was to purchase version 2 of the Rock House/Playmaker Risk and Industry Analysis document. The document was invaluable in getting our entire investment team up to speed on all of the complex policy and market dynamics of the industry. It also pointed out several weaknesses that we had not considered. Further, they were able to help us formulate solutions as we identified challenges. The principals of Rock House and Playmaker have literally been in the room creating or influencing critical market and policy developments since the inception of these industries, resulting in unmatched relationships, insights, and access. This group was great to work with and were committed to providing us the kind of rigorous, objective analysis necessary for an institutional due diligence process.” Emily Landsburg, Director, Ultra Capital

“My company purchased the first version of this industry analysis report in 2017. We found the report to be very useful in helping us internally develop in our people a deeper understanding of the complex dynamics of the biodiesel industry. My board members commented positively about using the document as an instructional and decision-making tool. As an independent third-party analysis that assesses risks in the marketplace, it is also helpful when dealing with lenders, investors, or strategic partners. The current version is even more comprehensive and I recommend it to anyone who has need of such a document.” Ron Lutovsky, COO, Iowa Renewable Energy

Photo by Biodiesel Magazine and Iowa Biodiesel Board